SECURITY

Upholding the straight line of tradition which is characteristic of nearly all modes of Abbey life is the Administration. Perennially achieving a large measure of success in their endeavors, this year's administration enhanced as well as embodied the righteous and conservative trend which they have followed in former years. With a firm but fair hand, they have guided the child of learning toward a direct road to Christian success.

ADMINISTRATION

Fr. John Bradley
President

A College or University is only as good as the people who coordinate their activities to make it a higher seat of learning. It is essential that the leader of such an institution should be as good as, if not essentially better than the rest of the human elements who join to provide the best possible education at any institution.

Belmont Abbey has enlisted the services of just such an individual in the person of Father John Bradley, president of the College. He is strong and stoic in times of adversity and when change is to be implemented, it is he who organizes the fair exchange of ideas into workable compromises which benefit all of the constituents involved in college life, not simply beneficial to the one dominant force that governs such an institution. He is a mediator and settles disputes with a diplomacy rarely seen in such a polarized setting as Belmont Abbey.

However, when there is a problem to be solved or a barrier to be surmounted, Father Bradley will act as a fierce competitor, searching for what is rightfully in the domain of the constituency he is fighting for. As an excellent soccer player at Oxford in the early fifties, he shows he has the initiative to persevere through any adverse circumstances while still maintaining a cosmopolitan serenity which instills in others a profound faith in his judgement. Father John Bradley might be the beginning step in the long climb to establish Belmont Abbey College as an educational leader and innovator of worthwhile change.

The members of the faculty of Belmont Abbey College have an even closer unity than do its students. Where the students are often at odds physically, politically, or socially, the faculty exhibits the fortitude which overcomes these differences. Through the use of their combined intellect, the core of learned professors attains a heightened union of collective mind and body which serves the explicit purpose of strengthening the quality of education.

FACULTY

Mr. J. P. Smith

The Accounting department has the responsibility of preparing young minds to function in a world dominated by the dollar. Ably directed by chairman J. P. Smith, the department shows the unprejudiced and analytic thought characteristic of such an outstanding faculty leader. He has a learned and experienced staff backing him, with the emphasis placed on depth and variety of teaching methods.

Fr. Martin Hayes

ACCOUNTING DEPARTMENT

Fr. Martin Hayes

The expansion of personnel and facilities brought the athletic department into focus this year. Under the capable direction of Dr. William Williams, who is as hard working as he is amiable, several curriculum changes were introduced. No longer must the sophomore struggle through a hygiene course. He is now free to explore a myriad of athletic endeavors from badminton to tennis.

*Dr. William Williams,

ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT

Mr. Ted Crunkleton

Mr. Louis O'Gorman

Mr. Stanley Dudko

Mrs. Isabelle Hart, Chairman

Dr. Gilbert Farley

ECONOMICS & BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

The classic educational picture of Belmont Abbey lies within the extensive confines of the Econ and Business department. Far and away the largest department when it comes to student enrollment, the Econ and Business department breeds within the true Abbey man a mind of economy plus a creditable knowledge of business. What a combination! Mrs. Isabelle Hart is the extremely competent and confident chairwoman and wreathed around her are the smiling faces and incisive wits of Dr. Gilbert Farley and Mr. Stanley Dudko.

The "meat" of the Abbey is ground through the Economics and Business mill every year and what is produced sure looks different but tastes very much the same as before.

Mr. Stanley Dudko

Fr. Oscar Burnett

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

The English department of Belmont Abbey College is, in the opinion of many, the best this institution has to offer. The variety of styles of instruction are vastly diversified, but all realize and achieve the same goal; that of an unequalled excellence in the presentation of literary knowledge.

Because of the individual excellence of all the members of the English department, it has come to be seen in the eyes of the Abbey students as the most challenging but most satisfying major field of study among the entire spectrum of education which exists on this campus.

Fr. Matthew McSorley

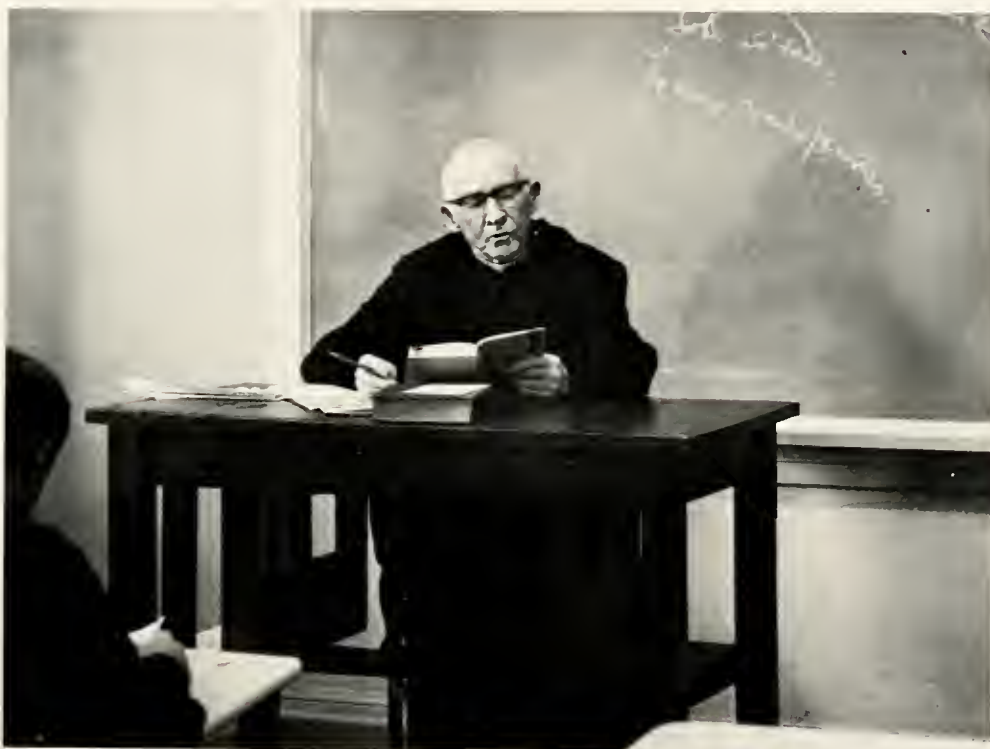

Mrs. Jean Moore

Fr. John Oetgen

Fr. Sebastian Doris

History, one of the more challenging majors offered at Belmont Abbey, is characterized, as is English, by a lack of student interest.

The Chairman of the Department, Father Anselm Biggs is extremely intelligent and one of the foremost historians in the country. Although his lectures sometimes are rather accelerated, so is his process of thinking. In line with this process, Father Anselm has formulated a team of historians who present a varied but balanced account of minute detail, major historical trends and practical theories or methodologies of life.

With a superb historical education, the history major at the Abbey may look forward to a development and growth which he can govern simply by using his memory to recreate history and place himself in the proper perspective in such a series of trends.

Fr. Anselm Biggs, Chairman

HISTORY DEPARTMENT

Fr. Raphael Bridge

Fr. Lawrence Willis

Mr. Francis Murray

Madame Marie-Louise Rahier Chairman

The Modern Languages Department, spearheaded by the educational fervor of its directress, Madame Marie-Louise Rahier, has always preceded the majority of the schools departments when it comes to implementing change. The progressive and liberal methods of education practiced by Madame Rahier and the rest of the staff have proved to be touchstones to the intellectual atmosphere incorporated within the confines of the Abbey. Variety is the watchword in this department, as a student can choose a major field of study in French or make the monumental jump to German. Spanish is offered. And who knows, it might become necessary for a new course in Vietnamese. Times, as do languages certainly change, and it is a refreshing one to see such in a department of such caliber.

MODERN LANGUAGES DEPARTMENT

Fr. Kenneth Geyer

Mrs. William Lindeke

Fr. Lawrence Willis

Mr. Jack Hanahan

Philosophy at the Abbey has lost one of its foremost propounders. Mr. Thomas Enright was tireless in his transmittal of new ideas and new methods of thought into the naive minds of his students. Poor health has caused him to curtail any teaching activities and his untiring devotion will be sorely missed among both those who knew him as a friend and those who were subject to him as an instructor.

However, Mr. Enright left behind a nucleus of philosophers and instructors who will carry on his work and probably surpass it. Mr. Benjamin Berry, Doctor Victoria Miller, and Father's Francis Foster and Blaise Plageman complete unified structure of philosophic instruction. Although emphasis has, in the past, been towards the Thomistic philosophic view, the trend is changing, especially with the addition of Doctor Miller. She tends to give the department a more balanced view of philosophy. Her opposition to Thomism adds a healthy atmosphere of friendly antipathy to an otherwise possibly stagnating department.

Abbot Walter Coggin

PHILOSOPHY DEPARTMENT

Fr. Blaise Plageman

Mr. Thomas Enright

Mr. Benedict Berry

Mr. Ramon Nusser, Chairman

Fr. Oscar Burnett

POLITICAL SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

Mr. Patrick Gallagher

The political scientist at Belmont Abbey is inhibited in a sense that the basic political views put forth by the political science department are sometimes archaic and extremely rightist in outlook.

One who opposed this view tends to run into difficulty when confronting the major instructors. This is beginning for the first time to change with the installation of Mr. Ramon Nusser as the chairman of the department. He is a more liberal individual compared to the other instructors under his domain. He is attempting to change the politically stifling atmosphere instilled within the Abbey, and he and a large constituency of concerned people hope that his goal will be achieved. This goal, if realized, would instill in the average Abbeyman an awareness of the outside world and in his confusion, he might attempt to act on an original idea of his own creation.

Miss Barbara Sullivan

Fr. Cuthbert Allen, Chairman

SOCIOLOGY DEPARTMENT

Mr. Charles Dils

The Sociology department is headed by Father Cuthbert Allen, a distinguished and influential man for many years in the Charlotte area. Although having views opposed to the liberalized element of the school, Father Cuthbert attempts to postulate his own beliefs in a fair and unbiased manner and curiously does have an ear for opposition, as long as it is directed intelligently and founded on worthwhile principles. It is this atmosphere of regulated discussion and controlled understanding which governs the sociology department of Belmont Abbey College and also characterizes the basic techniques used in sociological studies in the field. In the future, sociology could become a significant department of a growing and changing Abbey. However, the sociologists which instruct us must grow and develop as well as aiding the students they teach to do so.

Bro. Gregory Corcoran

Fr. James Solari

Theology in past years has been essential to the structure of the Abbey. This year, with the absence of chairman Fr. Jerome Dollard and Fr. Nicholas Balducci, the ranks of theological instructors are thin. When the two return from further studies, the department will once again function as a symmetrically moving machine. Father Lawrence Willis and Mr. Ted Hayes are extremely competent in the positions they now hold and are able to take up the slack caused by the absence of such a significant duo.

The Christian fiber which forms the backbone of the Abbey as an institution is instilled too deeply in all who are associated with the Abbey for it to be dislodged by a shortage of outstanding professors of various faiths and various theories of the existence of man.

THEOLOGY DEPARTMENT

Fr. Lawrence Willis

Fr. Donnellan

Mr. Ted Hayes

The Science department is much too broad to be taken as a single department. The most essential to man is the study of life or Biology. Doctor Juan Celicia and Mrs. P. A. Yonders combined their knowledge and teaching abilities to form a balanced approach to all forms of biological existence.

Chemistry, or that which analyzes the elements and their constituents, is directed by the knowledgeable technical skills of Dr. Joseph Matthews.

Mr. John Hanahan, known all over the South for his geological rock collection and for his uncanny knowledge of geographic facts and theories, relates for the interested the laws which govern the constants which make up our environment. The study of these laws and facts are two fold and are known as geology and geography.

There is a process which combines life, the elements, and the environment into an ordered reasonable world of forms. The Science which governs this combination is physics. However, physics cannot be grasped by a novice. A working knowledge of the science of mathematics is essential for the development of the true scientist.

Dr. Joseph Matthews

Mr. John Hanahan

Fr. Bertrand Pattison

The final act is always the most difficult. But in its difficulty is conceived a significance which is integral and climactic to the entire structure of the play. It is this way in life as well as in the universal existence. After culminating four years of education, the graduate finds in himself a completeness which will bolster him through all of life, even though he must begin again, as a new initiate to the fraternity of life. Such is the meaning of the Senior year.

Goodbye.

To organize one's mind is to mature mentally. Combines with emotional and physical development, sincere participation in organizations aids in the ultimate maturation process of the successful collegian. Organization is the key to security although it may lead to a staid, regulated existence, characterized by consistent and blind conformity and an inability to apprehend, comprehend or even conceive of creativity or growth. However, used correctly, organization can facilitate the performance of daily requirements and an interest in organized academic endeavors will help one to accept in later life the role of the doer of necessary actions.

Action is a word which depicts the personality of Father Blaise Pageman. He has been instrumental in the performance of many duties on campus and among the surrounding communities. Action also is the sobriquet attached to the group of conscientious students who have pledged their support for the ideas and projects engineered by the indomitable Father Blaise. The "Action" committee was responsible for organizing the black community in Belmont to refurbish the old St. Benedict's School into a community center.

Each weekend, Father Blaise's disciples attend the sick and the infirm at surrounding nursing homes and ever so often there is organized a function which intermingles the inmates of Dallas prison with the Abbey students. The hand of Father Blaise is also felt on the Abbey itself where, as pastor and school chaplain, he celebrates Mass whenever possible in the dormitories, he organizes work crews, and is always ready to offer a guided helping hand to all who need and request assistance. "Action" is the extension of the spirit of Father Blaise into the minds and hearts of others who are also willing to help those less fortunate than themselves. Father Blaise truly is "Action" for what he accomplishes is worth considerably more than all the sermons ever given in the Abbey Cathedral.

College Union

The students of Belmont Abbey College and Sacred Heart College have recently joined their efforts in a mutual entertainment program — the College Union. The College Union regularly sponsors social weekends, dances, films, lectures, the "Friday Night Thing" and symposia. Especially successful have been the major social events sponsored at Homecoming, Mardi Gras, and Spring Weekends.

Increased participation and cooperation among students and faculty members of the two colleges could help to ensure the continued success of the College Union program. Both students and faculty have a meaningful opportunity to exchange ideas and to share their competencies as they organize and project entertainment, cultural stimulation, and educational growth, along with the purely recreational events the Union sponsors.

Student Government

In order to foster initiative and leadership, a system of student government has been established by the students of Belmont Abbey College. The general purpose of the Student Government is to develop and augment the general welfare of the student body and to be its political arm in its relationship with the college. All aspects of Belmont Abbey College that directly affect the student body come within the scope of interest of this governing organization, which includes three distinct branches. The Executive Branch, composed of four offices, the President, the Vice-President, the Secretary, and the Treasurer, is elected by the student body at large. The Legislative Branch, composed of twelve members and headed by the Vice-President of the Student Government, is elected from the individual classes of the college. The Judicial Branch, composed of seven members, is appointed by the President of the Student Government.

The Student Government has become a viable force on Belmont Abbey campus. It is a mature and responsible body whose decisions and recommendations are respected and enforced. It is a powerful organization whose very existence is testimony to the positive and progressive aspects of mature student leadership.

College Young Democrats, affiliated with the National Organization, was the only organized political group on campus. The Abbey club assisted Basil L. Whitener of Gastonia in his unsuccessful campaign for Congress. Besides conducting a Belmont area telephone and flyer-distribution campaign, the CYD sponsored a noontime rally with Mr. Whitener as guest. In the Spring, members of the club attended State Young Democrat conventions in North Carolina and Virginia. Speakers were presented talking on such topics as "Politics and the Media," "Black Southern Politics," and "Hunger in America."

Every year a committee from the administration, faculty, and student body determines by vote the most outstanding seniors on the basis of the following qualities: excellence and sincerity in scholarship, leadership and participation in extra-curricular and academic activities, citizenship and service to the college, promise of future usefulness to business and society. A short biography of each student honored by selection is published in the annual edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Selected, qualified students broadcast from the campus studios every night of the week via radio station WCGC in Belmont. Formats vary with the personality, ranging from middle of the road to hard rock. Founded by Stan Norton, Abbey Radio has started many students on a career in broadcasting. Thus the facilities were modified to permit the "jocks" to broadcast to the Abbey and Sacred Heart dorms on a closed circuit basis.

LITTLE THEATER

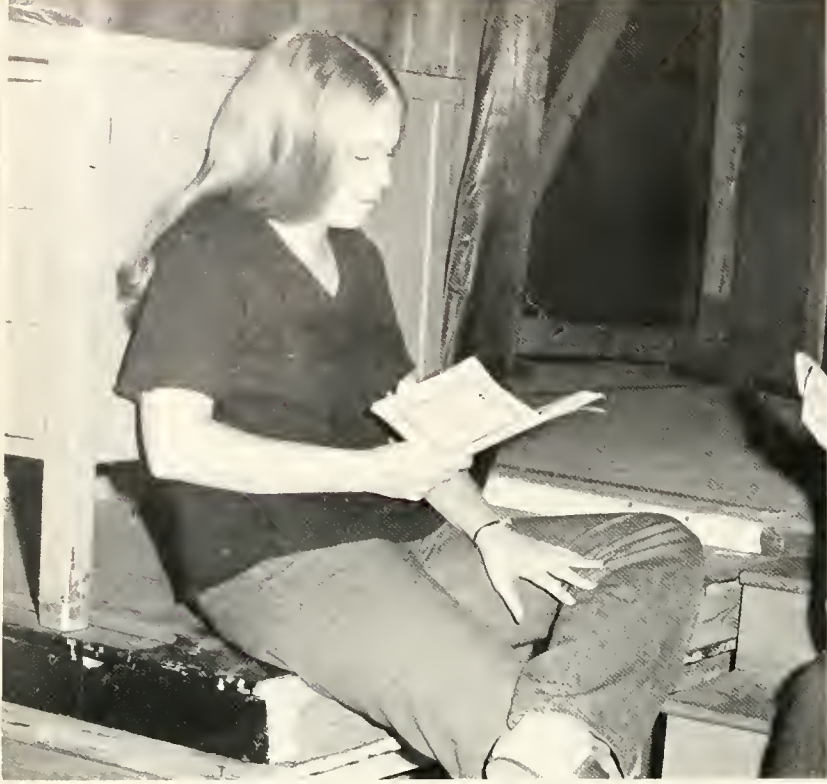

Brilliantly directed by the Abbey's own nonpareil dramatist Father John Oetgen, these comical dramas were excellently portrayed by a cast who seemed to grasp Father John's emphasis on the serious side of life which is often masked by elements of amusement and sometimes pure enjoyment.

Each playlet, although injected with extremely artistic humor had an overriding theme of seriousness incorporated into its very framework.

Dominating the social scene on the B.A.C. campus is the system of Greek fraternities which consist of nearly half of the student body.

Perennially in the forefront when there is work or play to be done are our greeks — rushing, cajoleing, promising, running, ignoring, and above all, trying to achieve true brotherhood.

Although not as influential as they were in past years, the greeks still manage to wield a mighty paddle against all challengers to their institutions of higher learning, the Abbey still regards the pinning of a girl as highly as the takeover of a building.

Ideally, the fraternity system is supposed to consist of men who are honest and basically pure, who are willing to work, not alone, but with their brothers in a spirit of camaraderie and intimate friendship. More often than not, the Greeks pervert their honesty and the only thing pure they can think of is the alcoholic percentage of their "Purple Jesus". They do have intimate relations with others, however, they are usually with the opposite sex.

The Belmont Abbey greek system has a one party structure —

only one party on a given weekend can succeed —

GREEK WEEK!

The annual event known as "Greek Week" is held early in the first semester as a preview to the rest of the school of what to expect from their fraternities. In the 1970-71 Olympiad, Tau Kappa Epsilon attained the coveted first position. They captured first place in the College Bowl, second place in the basketball tournament and an overall win in the Greek Games themselves. This accumulation of points rose them above their closest rivals, Phi Kappa Theta.

The entire week consists of a conglomeration of all the Greeks accomplish throughout the year. They first attempt to be intellectual. They soon tire of that and begin to "shoot some hoops". When such endeavors are culminated, they round out their schedule with a good-natured romp on the athletic field followed by a good wild party on Saturday night.

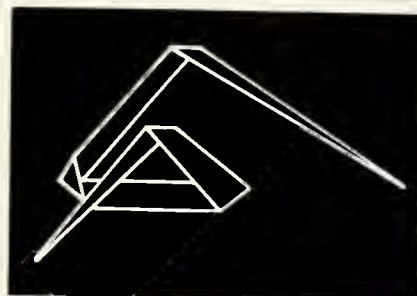

Sports at the Abbey have recently been disappointing. The spirit and incentive seems to be missing from those who are participating as well as from those few who remain in the stands. Although the athletic program is small, the addition of the new field house will contribute to the growth of sporting events in future seasons. We already have the beginnings of a swimming team.

It seems sad that the Abbey should be so lacking in their sports program. What made the Abbey a worthwhile institution in the past was its ability to incorporate vastly different athletes and students into worthwhile, functioning units. To polarize a school or an athletic team is to stagnate it.

This is what many feel has happened to the sports program at the Abbey. Something must be done to bring about a more intelligent grasp of the meaning of athletic competition, it also would lead to a more diversified and balanced structure of teams.

SOCCER

Despite the efforts of the esteemed Stanley Dudko, the Belmont Abbey Soccer team managed to compile an 8-4 won-lost record against some of the most avid competition in the Southeast. Pitting their strength against such worthy opponents as U.N.C. at Chapel Hill and Davidson, the Crusaders managed to speed through the season with marked if not consistent prowess.

In some encounters they appeared curiously "down" but in the final analysis, they presented themselves as spirited athletes who proved a credit to the Abbey tradition. Sparked by the accelerated offense of Robert Shambach and "Doctor Don" Furman and the defense of Richard Hoeffling. The Abbey team proved capable competitors.

As before stated, Coach Dudko stimulated his players to rise to every occasion. As the impetus to his team's successes, Mr. Dudko was once more named Coach of the Year by his contemporaries in the NAIA conference.

Basketball Coach — Louie O'Gorman

Trainer — John Kusiak

The "Crimson Crusaders" could not come across with a winning record this year, their first in the new Wheeler Center. For many years, the Abbey was hampered by competing in the confines of the cramped Haid Gymnasium. This year, the spacious Wheeler Center was inhibited by the cramped style of play performed by the team itself.

Led by their emotionally flamboyant coach Louis O'Gorman, the Red Knights have compiled a remarkable record so far this season. This means we have equalled last year's win record. Progress is the most important aspect in a winning basketball team.

The most impressive thing to mention about the Abbey team this year is recruiting. Coach O'Gorman has done an outstanding job in choosing the men he wants to represent the Abbey. He has constructed a nucleus of participants that shall remain cohesive in the years to come.

During the year, we have constantly relied on the clutch ball handling of Bobby Gallagher and the tenacious defense of Jimmy McDede. Phil Robinson has shown remarkable consistency while Dick Mazurak has exemplified the poise and grace of a professional.

The coach seems to have an inborn sense of fair play as he never plays favorites and lets everyone play as much as he can. Mike Gallery and Chris Caver can vouch for that. Although Chris has sustained a knee injury which has unfortunately finished his basketball career and also classified him IV-F in the Army's draft system, he feels if he had stayed healthy, with the coach's help, he would have greatly aided the team.

BASEBALL

The spring of 1971 has become the scene of the embarking of the Belmont Abbey College Baseball team, as it equips itself for a long and arduous season. These final months of the school year will be filled with the grunts and groans of straining athletes as well as the spurts and splashes of chewed and expectorated chewing tobacco.

As it has in the past, the Baseball team will be directed by the masterful and intensely intelligent reasoning of its mentor, Coach Ted Cruckleton. Known for his ability to get along with a variety of personalities, coach Crunkleton, achieved the maximum of efficiency from his players by implementing them all with equal playing time, and by giving each member of the team a chance to make his own decisions on how to perform in an athletic contest.

The coach's fairness and his intuitive insight pertaining to the fine points of baseball has given to the team a polished professionalism hard to find among the college ranks.

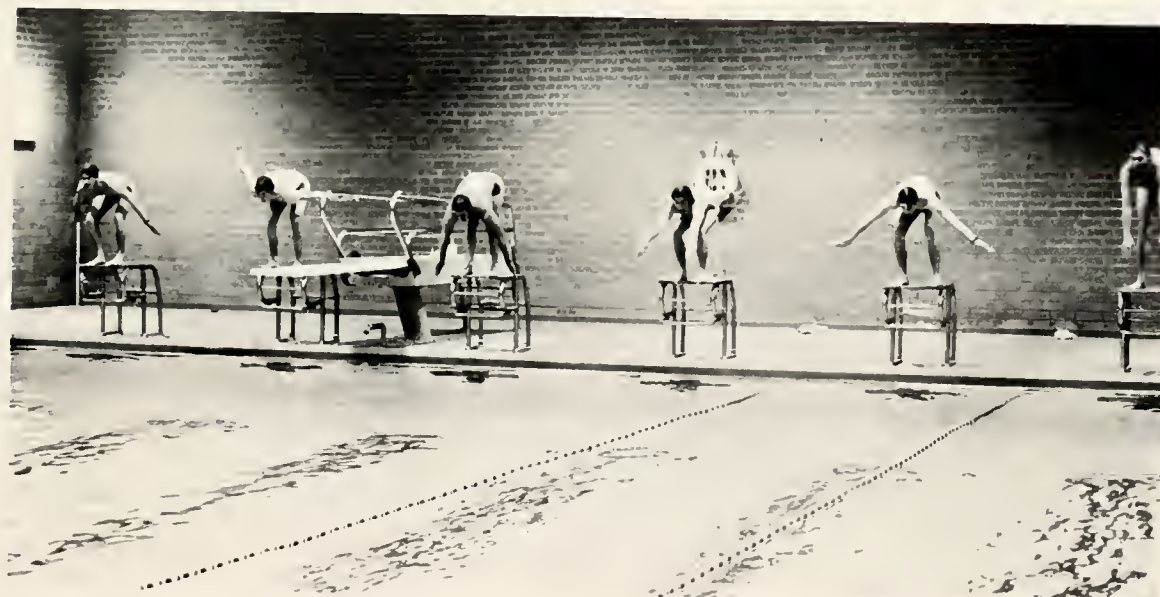

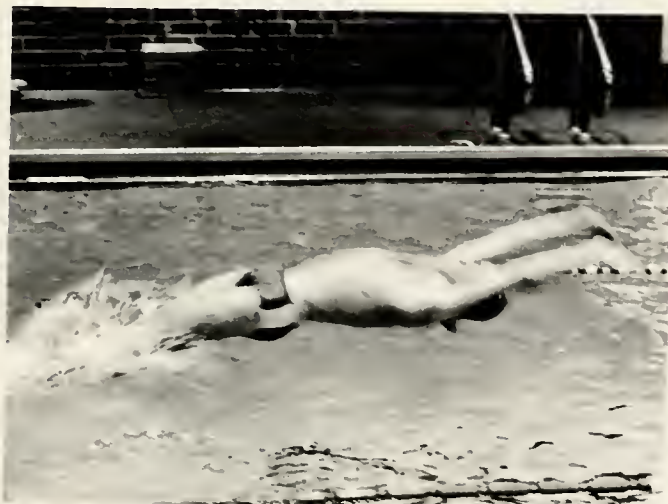

The team is young and will develop possibly this year or next into a prominent force on the baseball diamonds in the south. With a forward outlook, it will be difficult for some of the more nimble members of the team to keep their cleats in the basepaths. One must look to the red clay and tobacco stained ground one stands on before he can begin to play "flies up" with other athletics.

The newly initiated swimming team at the Abbey will shortly be one of its greatest athletic assets. The aquatic genius of Coach Michael Reidy is shown by the remarkable conditioning he has produced within the individual on the team. Although somewhat overmatched in its first year of varsity competition, the Abbey showed itself to be a difficult and admirable adversary in every endeavor on which they embarked. With this sturdy foundation, it seems quite plausible the prowess of the Abbey swimmers will gradually increase and in a short time they will develop into a strong contender in the underwater world of Southern sport.

Golfing at the Abbey has for many years been taken lightly by the majority of the disinterested students. However, at the start of this season, the present golf team hopes to change their image. With the proposed aquisition of a new course to play on, the Abbey golfers plan first to improve the overall appearance of their athletic position.

Secondly, but even more important, has been the instilling within the individual members a sense of team play coinciding with their own separate development and maturation. This has been made possible by the keen and watchful eye of coach Father Martin Hayes. It is also through his efforts that the Abbey has succeeded in procuring the services of some very talented freshmen who will bolster the team by providing much needed depth. Some of the new additions show great promise and the rough seasons the Abbey have experienced in the past will probable green in to a smooth fair way of a culminating winning season.

Mike Reidy, Coach

Tennis

Tennis at the Abbey has always held tremendous popularity among the students as well as the faculty members. Since its inception, the Belmont Abbey College tennis team has shown itself to be a creditable and noteworthy addition to the limited yet functional athletic program. Coached by admirable and adequate Mr. Michael Reidy, it has become respected by nearly every Abbey student. Serving his players with physical as well as mental advice, Coach Reidy also protects them from depression by volleying with any outspoken critics who happen to bounce within his range. The coach is always straightforward in his methods and has never been known to be backhanded toward his players. This is most clearly evident in the style of ball played by his pupils.

Intramurals

Mr. Mike Reidy, Director*

The Intramural program at Belmont Abbey had developed into an elaborate blend of widely differing sports which, taken as a whole, is an institution much the same as is the college itself. Although the competitors keep changing, the rules which govern them remain essentially the same.

The Abbey boasts a participation of over sixty percent student body in some form of intramural sports activity: A spirit of keen competition as well as a sense of fair play are instilled into those who take the time to perform. The excitement generated by the competition also tends to relieve the tensions and pressures built up during the daily routine of educational life.

Above all, the intramural program teaches one to work with others for the betterment of himself and all those participating.

The Wheeler Center

Within its first full year of existence, the Wheeler Center for Physical Education has become the athletic hub of the Abbey community.

It hosts the varsity basketball team as well as assorted intramural contests. There are numerous classes held in its confines, making it also an edifice capable of instilling mental development in the minds of the users of its facilities. The spacious swimming pool has been the scene of varied aquatic events and also has been the birthplace of the Abbey's first swimming team. Equipped with a weight training complex and many modern athletic innovations, the Wheeler Center has greatly enhanced the athletic and social development of the student who resides on campus. Through its presence, the athletic center has brought to the Abbey a greater program of sports which mainly decreases pressure and tends to relax the minds and bodies of its users.

Abbot Edmund, Father Cuthbert and Mike Fitzsimmons accept Keys to the Wheeler Center.

Encompassing the full spectrum of human interest, the program of activities offered at B.A.C. accomplishes the task of channeling the drives and enthusiasms of individuals into worthwhile directions. Although sometimes stymied by sparse membership, the multiplicity of activities presented on campus allows for the student a planned framework of steps implemented to achieve the fulfillment of ideas, as opposed to indirected enthusiasm which generally leads to frustration.

ACTIVITIES

FRIDAY NIGHT THING

The creation of the "Friday Night Thing" last year has developed in this academic term as an institution which allows for the regulated release of tensions and in some cases certain amounts of bile of the students subject to Abbey life.

The encounters which occur rhythmically nearly every Friday provide limited entertainment and unfathomed opportunities for enjoyment.

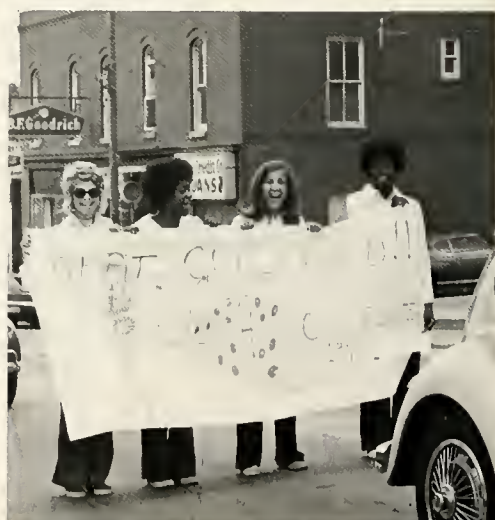

Achieving a modicum of enjoyment in such an environment is difficult and must be cultured by a complete attempt of the individual to enjoy himself. If this method falls short of its desired result one can merely increase inebriation or increase the dosage of his mild hallucinogen. In any fashion, the "Friday Night Thing" does serve a worthwhile purpose while attempting to satisfy students and to ease the pressures of college living.

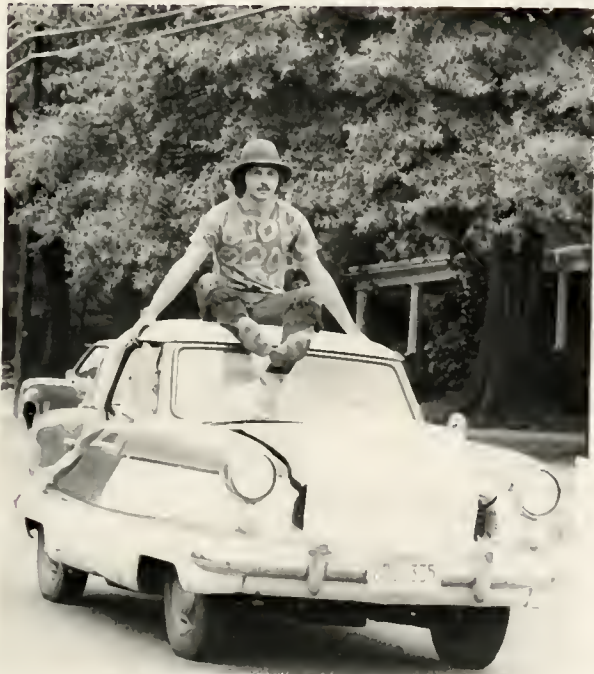

Upholding a time-honored tradition, the Abbey organized Homecoming Weekend for the Soccer Team. The Team responded by winning and "Doctor Don" responded by scoring the first "Hat Trick" of his career. Phi Kappa Theta came in first in the float contest which was the culmination of an exciting parade through Belmont.

CROW filled the void left by the elusive Allman Brothers.

Providing noteworthy back-up music was FREEWAY. Many felt them to be the real stars of the show.

The atmosphere was festive as the Abbey spirit evidenced itself in all recesses of the campus. Excitement was at an all-time high at half time as the Abbey led comfortably and Janice Krumpa was easily crowned homecoming queen.

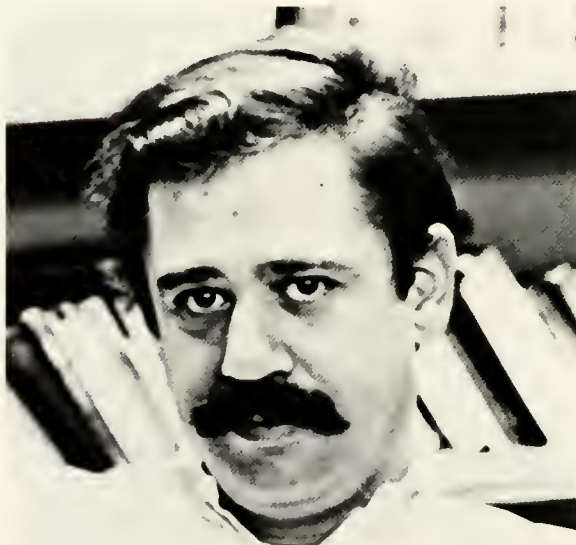

LECTURES AND ENTERTAINMENT

Credit must be given to the committee who organizes the lectures and entertainment on this campus. They are perennially lacking in funds, and their budget is microscopic. The members of the lecture committee are especially conscientious but when they choose a speaker, sometimes there is a surreptitious change in who is supposed to appear. Everyone claims complete innocence. One could hardly blame the students. Why should they reverse their own decisions on who are to speak. The culprit must lie elsewhere.

Dr. J. J. Spengler

Dr. Richard Schechner

The entertainment offered on this campus is monumental compared to the miniscule amount of working capital the committee receives. This body is also subject to the skulduggery of gremlins who pervert and subvert the wishes of the very students on the committee itself.

On the whole, the few lectures we have and the brand of entertainment are adequate to serve the needs of the majority of the students on campus and the committees who provide such should be lauded. There are severe limitations on the programs but progress is being made.

Ty Boyd, of WBTV, spoke to a packed house of interested Abbeymen. His subject: the problems of modern communication.

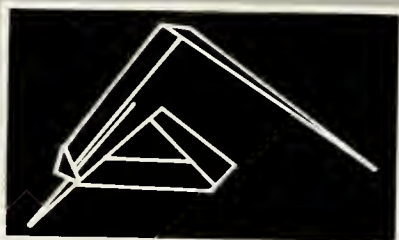

Messrs. Camele and Margerison of Sacred Heart College and Ramon Nusser of the Abbey Political Science Department led a discussion of Revolution in America.

The collegiate underclassman's role is a complex one. While molting from an insecure youth to a fully developed man, he must also be molding himself to accept his ultimate insertion in society. As his world rapidly changes from an advanced high school to a preliminary life course, the college student must learn to govern himself through the avenues of change which will confront him at the crossroads of youth and manhood. Only through a gradual development, can the impetuous and footloose freshman subject himself to the rigorous indifference of the sophomoric tradition, only to be confronted by the unwarranted confidence of a true junior. Through careful self-evaluation the underclassman should accept his various roles merely as steps in his development towards senior superiority and eventually manhood.
